On 5th March 2016, a group of 17 students from Associate of Science in Applied Business Statistics (AScABS) and Associate of Science in Business Analysis (AScBAnl), led by Lecturer Mr. Andrew Yam from the Division, visited the Hong Kong Monetary Authority (HKMA) Information Centre.

A guided tour by HKMA staff was arranged for the students to introduce the major functions of HKMA, the history of HK banking industry, and the development of HK currency and linked exchange rate system. From the tour, the students have learnt more about the banking and financial industries in Hong Kong, and have gained more interest towards these areas as some Year-2 students have planned their articulation in related disciplines, e.g. finance and investment science.
